

"It is in the plan of God that the whole of the created universe be transformed, for the spirit lives in all of creation."

We all experience these uncertainties and challenging times due to COVID -19 Pandemic.

In this lockdown we Presentation Sisters in Swat community are bearers of light and hope through our prayers and our Communications with our staff and students , families and friends and assuring them our care and love.

We felt we could use our time and resources in positive ways to help out in public health danger. We are sewing new face masks with the help of our local ladies and community sisters to support our neighboring Government hospital and a clinic where hundreds of poor patients come every day. When we offered the doctor this help he really appreciated our kind gesture.

Before lockdown on March 17th, with the help of our teachers and sisters, we went to three different villages to deliver a health awareness program in relation to COVID - 19 , emphasizing safety and protection through personal hygiene and social distancing (stay home , stay safe) for their families, and communities. Only women attended this workshop because they mainly responsible for their house work, cooking, cleaning, and management.

I would like to conclude with a reflection from a booklet entitle "Creation Waits "

"St. Paul tells us... that until we come into a full consciousness of our identity as God's people, and are so transformed by grace that the life of God is clearly revealed in us, the created universe cannot fulfill its destiny."
